My ability to quickly adapt to each patient's unique needs and my commitment to continuous learning have allowed me to effectively assist in improving patient outcomes.

I pride myself on my ability to build rapport with patients, which I believe is crucial to fostering a positive rehabilitation environment. My experience has taught me the importance of empathy and encouragement, as well as the technical skills required to assist in executing therapeutic exercises and modalities. I have consistently received positive feedback from both patients and supervisors on my professionalism and the quality of care I provide.
